Worry over water treatment forums

THE Mundaring Residents and Ratepayers Association is concerned community consultation about the Water Corporation's Mundaring water treatment plant will not be open to the public.

Community consultation on 20 possible sites considered for the plant will begin this month. President Sandra Bentley said she had been informed that one representative from chosen stakeholder groups could attend the sessions. "The concerns of the Mundaring Residents and Ratepayers Association is that by limiting representation not everyone near the 20 proposed sites will get a say," she said.

However, a Water Corporation spokesman said a stakeholder forum was a consultation method being considered and details of the consultation process was still being developed.
